HOPE

With communities and schools being shut down for more than two months, child welfare experts are calling this “a perfect storm for abuse, neglect and violence.”

At Chosen, we know exactly how to help with the aftermath of this pandemic, to bring healing and restoration to the children and families most affected. It begins with giving HOPE.

We are smack dab in the middle of our Time for Hope campaign -- to celebrate Monica, Nick, Trina and so many others who are overcoming extraordinary challenges despite this chaotic time.

HOPE is a powerful word.

Invisible yet tangible. The currency for perseverance.

Every day, we could share dozens of stories. Heartbreaking. Hard. Painful stories. But every day, HOPE is being restored here. Life-changing transformation is taking place before our eyes. A whole generation, family trees are being changed.

Your giving brings HOPE to young boys and girls recovering from trauma. It enables us to give HOPE to fathers and mothers.

Our largest fundraiser of 2020 would have been in May. We hated canceling it, but this time has truly allowed us to focus on what we do best — extending HOPE and healing.

I'm asking for your most generous gift today, when giving truly matters more than ever.

Sincerely,

Jenni Lord

We do whatever it takes to restore peace in the home.

Chosen helps children heal from trauma by strengthening their families. We serve foster, kinship, adoptive and reunified families. Children who have been harmed in relationship can only heal in relationship. Our holistic approach addresses children's mental and behavioral health needs, as well as caregiver and sibling needs. We are relentlessly committed to doing whatever it takes to set children on a path of healing.

Chosen in the news: pandemic causing foster families to relinquish children

It's a stressful situation for families. Being quarantined with children not going to school, parents working at home and in some cases losing the family's income.

Now imagine being a foster family going through COVID-19.

"So these kiddos have a lot of behavioral needs and a lot of behavioral issues and now they're all confined. No, they're not leaving the house for school or day care and so there are elevated needs which causes a lot of parental stress, as you can imagine."
